

AGS Launches New Product - AGS Prime

October, 2019

AGS is excited to announce the launch of its newest product AGS Prime, a no-code/low-code platform that allows for the creation of an arbitrary number of data collection and reporting apps. Our customers will build their own applications using a drag and drop interface so they may have multiple applications within a single domain, all configured on top of the platform. Each application can contain multiple data sets, accessed by multiple forms, views, dashboards, and external reporting tools. With these new capabilities, AGS looks to improve the data reporting of a variety of clients including community colleges, workforce boards, and more. AGS Prime was launched at the annual National Council for Workforce Education Conference. For more information, visit gstars.com.
